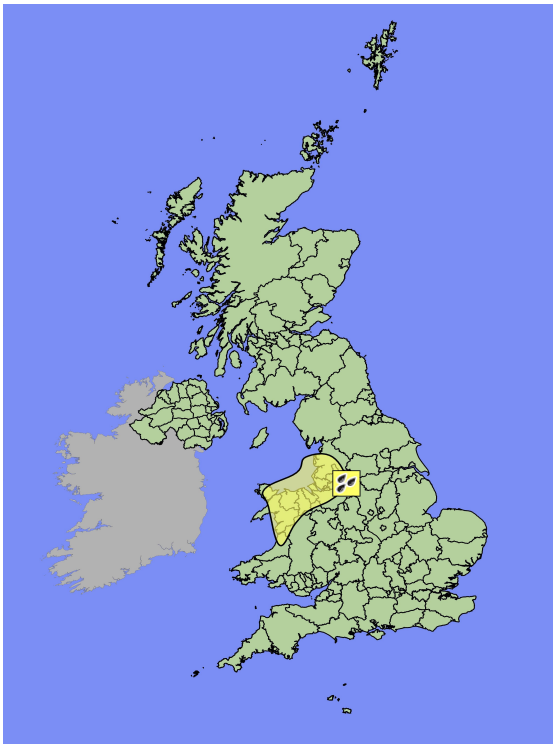
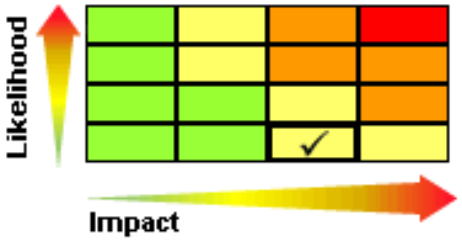
National Severe Weather Warning Service





Chief Forecasters Assessment
Rainfall totals of 15 to 25mm are expected widely, with up to 40mm possible in places. There remains some uncertainty regarding the precise location of areas to be most affected.

The Met Office have issued a Yellow Warning of Rain

Valid from 00:00 on Sun, 18th Sep 2011 until 08:00 on Sun, 18th Sep 2011

An area of heavy and prolonged showers is likely to affect parts of northwest England along with north and west Wales during the early hours of Sunday, easing from the northwest by Sunday morning. The public should be aware of the risk of localised surface water flooding, with urban areas more likely to be affected.
